Animals get final push

Some councillors worry the move could hurt attendance at Storybook Gardens

ANGELA MULLINS

Four seals from Storybook Gardens are expected to be in a new pool at the St. Louis Zoo this spring.

City council gave final approval Tuesday to moving the animals — along with several others — out of the Springbank Park facility. Their enclosure will be replaced with a new hands-on attraction that aims to bring the stories back to Storybook, officials have said.

Councillors Dale Henderson and Bud Polhill posed the only opposition to the idea. Henderson pitched a plan that would have delayed moving the animals while city staff took several actions, including trying to find a buyer for Storybook.

Others stressed that time is of the essence, with the Missouri zoo looking to have its new enclosure filled in a matter of months. An animal-advocacy group has volunteered to pick up the tab for relocating the seals and other exotic animals, including lynx and birds of prey.

"We've got a golden opportunity where we can look everyone in the eye and say: 'We've transferred these animals to a better place at no cost to the taxpayer,'" Coun. Nancy Branscombe said before voting. "(If) we lose this opportunity, we might not have another one. Then, we're going to see these animals in more and more distress until one of them finally dies."

Come back to bargaining table, premier tells CAT

Electro-Motive Diesel lockout on McGuinty agenda during Tuesday visit Premier also toured 3M Canada headquarters, talked to chamber

The U.S. owners of Electro-Motive Diesel are not living up to Ontario's expectations of fair labour practices, Premier Dalton McGuinty said Tuesday.

McGuinty turned the spotlight on Caterpillar about five minutes into a 15-minute speech at a London Chamber of Commerce luncheon. Segueing from statements about the province's successes in building a strong workforce, McGuinty called on CAT to resume negotiations with about 450 locked-out Canadian Auto Workers.

The "balanced, made-in-Ontario approach requires that unions and management sit down and talk to try to work out differences," McGuinty said.

"I'm urging Electro-Motive's owners to return to the bargaining table, engage in meaningful discussions and try to resolve this lockout."

Caterpillar, he said, needs to "to show some flexibility" to come to an agreement that acknowledges "those workers deserve a fair wage."

Speaking to reporters later, McGuinty repeated the call to CAT but stopped short of saying he plans to contact the company directly. He also stopped short of naming the company outright.

"As a general rule," McGuinty said, he doesn't get involved in such situations, but this is an "extraordinary circumstance."

Workers have been locked out of the plant since Jan. 1, shortly after rejecting the company's final contract offer. The contract, union officials have said, called for wage cuts of more than 50 per cent for some workers and other concessions.

Talking points

- Premier Dalton McGuinty's speech at the Hilton was framed around the province's tax structure, energy system, infrastructure and workforce, all things he credited with building a "foundation for growth and prosperity."
- He touted the Liberal government's tax cuts, energy policies (citing the Samsung plant in London), infrastructure support (the widening of Highway 401 near the Wellington interchange) and higher high-school graduation rates.
- He promised to deliver a budget that will eliminate Ontario's $16-billion deficit by fiscal year 2017-18. The plan will "deliver government services more efficiently" instead of raising taxes, he said.

MCGUINTY IN LONDON

Premier takes pass on picket visit

Electro-Motive Diesel workers lined the front of downtown London's Hilton hotel on Tuesday, hoping to get some face time with Premier Dalton McGuinty.

Rod Woof, 41, of London, said he and his EMD colleagues have an "endless" list of suggestions for things McGuinty could do to help their cause, including creating policies that offer employment insurance to locked-out workers.

While McGuinty urged Electro-Motive's U.S. parent company, Caterpillar, to come back to the bargaining table and resolve the labour dispute, he didn't meet with the workers.

Woof called that frustrating.

"We want answers on this situation, and we want to hear from him directly on what he intends to do on our behalf, if anything," Woof said.

"We've had so many visits to the picket line. I think it's about time that he shows his face there as well."

Southwold man facing child-porn charges

A St. Thomas-area man who photographed young female models and weddings was to appear in court Monday on child sexual-exploitation charges.

Ontario Provincial Police said they were contacted by U.S. investigators about a man communicating on the Internet with a person in Colorado. The investigation was carried out with the help of Toronto police, Colorado Springs police and the U.S. Department of Homeland Security.

Last week, police raided a home in Southwold Township, just west of St. Thomas. Jason Leonard Sawyer, 31, who operated Jay Sawyer Photography, is facing sex and child pornography charges.

THE DATING GAME: METRO'S MINI-SURVEY

Does the kind of cellphone a person uses tell you what they're like as a date? For instance, are iPhone users really more romantic? Are BlackBerry users really drunk diallers? We asked Metro readers.

"I don't mind what kind of cellphone they have. I don't even have a cellphone."
Jae Kim, 19

"From experience I would say iPhone users are not necessarily more romantic. I don't think he's romantic — he's probably surfing the web while he's talking to me."
Kelly Kaiser

"That's ridiculous. You can maybe tell how rich someone is by how they dress or what kind of car they drive. A cellphone is a cellphone."

▶ Who's a sexier date — an Android, iPhone or BlackBerry user?

If you're reading this article on your Android phone, then you're more likely to have sex on a first date, according to new survey results released Tuesday by Match.com.

The survey was done for the international dating site to look at the dating habits of single men and women of various ages across Canada.

Between Oct. 13 and Oct. 15, 2011, 1,068 Canadians were surveyed on everything from whether they have dated someone in the workplace to drinking alcohol on a first date — and at the end of the survey, they said whether they use an iPhone, Android or BlackBerry smartphone.

It turns out users of Google's Android phones are apparently wilder than other smartphone users.

Sixty-two per cent of Android singles said they have had sex after a first date, compared to 57 per cent of iPhone users and 48 per cent of BlackBerry users. But iPhone users are more likely to wait one day to reach out after a first date, whereas Android and BlackBerry users will wait after two to three days.

Kimberly Moffit, Match.com psychotherapist, said the survey shouldn't be taken too seriously, but it can open a window into people's dating habits.

Ottawa sex therapist Sue McGarvie said BlackBerry users tend to fit the corporate, conventional stereotype.

"They tend to be a little more traditional in terms of their dating approach."

Beating case: I was forced to confess

The man accused in the savage beating of a Canadian tourist says he was forced to sign a confession he never read.

Jose Ramon Acosta Quintero, 28, admits he hit Sheila Nabb in a hotel elevator, but denies he wanted to kill her.

He told the newspaper Noroeste that he understands the authorities are looking to clean up Mazatlan's image because the victim was a Canadian tourist, but argues they can do that without charging him with attempted murder.

Quintero has admitted he ran into Nabb, who he says was naked, in her hotel's elevator after he and a friend snuck in to have some drinks at the bar.

Nabb, 37, had been vacationing with her husband at the upscale Hotel Riu when she was found lying in a pool of blood in a resort elevator. She is now back in Calgary.

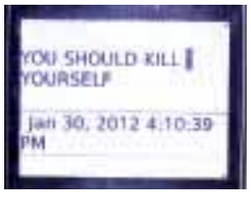
When bullying moves online, the damage multiplies — fast

Cyber-bullying can haunt both school-age victims and bullies long after graduation

HEATHER BUCHAN
LONDON@METRONEWS.CA
FOR METRO CANADA

The Internet has created a new and oftentimes more emotionally damaging type of bully: The cyber-bully — one who can follow you home.

"Before everyone was online with multiple computers at home, bullying stopped at three o'clock," said Monika Wierzbicki of the Canadian non-profit anti-bullying organization Stop a Bully. "There was a sort of buffer. Kids could go home, see their parents, have dinner and to some extent forget about bullying for a while. Now, a person can potentially be bullied non-stop, not just in school."



Katie Neu, 20, knows this all too well. The Listowel, Ont., resident and founder of Bullying Canada, became the victim of intense cyber-bullying when she was a high school student. The relentless hateful messages eventually pushed her to leave school and continue her studies from home.

"I would get bullied at school, then go home, turn on my computer and be victimized there, too," said Neu, who has continued to do college and university courses online. She said even now she still receives hate mail and has negative comments put on the Internet about her.

"Unfortunately, even if the (bully) eventually realizes that what they have done is wrong, undoing the damage can be very difficult."
MONIKA WIERZBICKI, STOP A BULLY ORGANIZATION

Anonymity

Wierzbicki said the Internet has changed the course of bullying irrevocably. Where traditional schoolyard bullies had to engage in face-to-face contact with their targets, the online world provides bullies with relative anonymity. As a result, bullies feel protected and do and say things they would otherwise not do in person.

In fact, a 2008 University of Toronto study cited on bewebaware.ca found that 75 per cent of the young people who admitted to cyber-bullying someone had never bullied anyone offline or face-to-face.

After-effects

Wierzbicki said that bullying, regardless of the form, can have implications for many years following the incident for both the bully and victim; however, the Internet has compounded the effects because of the immediacy and scope of the medium.

ALL PHOTOS: RYAN TAPLIN/METRO

"Pictures and comments can be posted and seen by (potentially) thousands of people in a matter of minutes," said Wierzbicki, adding that even if a bully repents and removes the offending material, a limitless number of people can have already seen it and downloaded it."

And the offending posts may not just haunt a bully's victims.

"Because employers now have the ability to check up on (prospective employees) by Googling them, or checking their Facebook page, any cyber-bullying a person committed has the potential to negatively affect their job prospects," said Wierzbicki. "The Internet can keep a record of previous negative behaviour that can be accessed by anyone who wants to find it. Discovered months or even years later, it can reflect poorly on a person who may in fact have already made amends, changed their behaviour and become a completely different person."

Consequences

According to Media Awareness Network, a Canadian media and digital literacy organization, more kids may be likely to engage in bullying behaviour online because they can't see or hear the effects of their actions and because many forms of social media lack supervision.

As a result of the increase in cyber-bullying incidents, in 2007 Ontario made changes to the province's Safe Schools Act, introducing a new legislation that made cyber-bullying an offence for which a student can be suspended or expelled from school.

— We take a look at anti-bullying legislation across the country.
— Missed a day? Check out our full three-part series on bullying.
— Have a comment? Let us know online, or tweet us @themetrolondon.

How bullies can make it right

Monika Wierzbicki's top three tips on making amends:

- Remove anything posted online that has caused another person pain or embarrassment.
- Make a personal apology, preferably by phone or email, to the victim.
- Help out with an anti-bullying organization at school or in the community.

What is cyber-bullying?

This new form of bullying is when the Internet, cellphones or other devices are used to send or post texts or images intended to hurt or embarrass another person. This can include threats, sexual remarks, pejorative labels, making someone the subject of ridicule on forums or posting false statements as fact aimed at humiliation.

Reader response

Re: "My bully, my friend" (Jan. 30). We asked: Should reformed bullies reach out to their victims or leave the past behind?

- @Aquaryan1972: I had to let go my pain of the bullies. However, I have not forgiven the adults who ignored my pleas for help
- @redsaidfred: If a bully wants to make amends and the victim is willing, why not? Sounds like a #happyending
- @laurynzmum: I had a childhood bully apologize to me many years after
- @onijoseph: it depends if victims consent to bullies contacting them.
- @unconvmummy: Absolutely but skip the hey bro arm punch! An apology via email or note goes a long way towards closure.
- @anitaelizar: Not everyone can forgive their bullies.

Via Facebook: Tj Freezn: It's good to first ask qualifying questions, so that they don't turn into an internet bully too lol. I'm glad you two patched it up! :D

Re: "Girl-style bullying vs. boy-style bullying" (Jan. 30). We asked, What's more hurtful — social alienation or physical bullying?

- @acidmiasma: Physical bullying is more hurtful. Social aspect usually the hidden motive, boys or girls.
- @jme_morin: Social & physical bullying are both equally hurtful. A combo of the two is worse.
- @markyeg: social alienation
- @kirkschmidt: through either means, the emotional impact is hard to shake, and never fully leaves. #BulliedNerd
- @WalterRogers1: All methods of bullying are not acceptable
- @rjperry61: As a principal I found dealing with phys bullying far easier than psychological bullying! Both happen to and by boys and girls
- @LiannePerry: That's a really odd question. Who can answer for everyone? We are individuals, all affected differently. #Bullying
- @inuk37: Bullying is bullying — abuse is abuse

RIM campaign graphic viewed as cartoonish

Characters were based on input from the company's Twitter followers

Four cartoon superheroes in a one-off information graphic had BlackBerry-maker Research In Motion on the defensive Tuesday, as some critics labelled RIM's effort to describe its users as "lame" and "embarrassing."

The Waterloo, Ont.-based company was downplaying the lighthearted take on its loyal smartphone users after the graphic — associated with RIM's "Be Bold" campaign — took an ugly turn on social media as some criticized it for being juvenile.

"This infographic is just intended to be a bit of fun," the company said on its Inside BlackBerry blog on Tuesday.

However, by that point some technology blogs and BlackBerry users had already misinterpreted the superheroes as part of a new advertising campaign.

RIM unveiled the characters in a graphic that broke down its user base into four market segments — naming each after a superhero.

The spunky Gogo Girl was used to describe the users who consider themselves achievers. The more daring Max Stone characterized the adventurous types.

Justin Steele is intended to represent the "advocate," ready to stick up for his friends and Trudy Foreal the "authentic" who is not afraid to call it as she sees it.

The cartoons led to a decidedly negative response on social media websites.

▶ The cartoon graphic for BlackBerry's "Be Bold" campaign.

One Twitter user named GoPic encouraged RIM to consider firing its marketing department, while others said the characters looked like they were designed to market to children.

RIM is in the midst of refocusing its strategies, and launched its "Be Bold" advertising campaign earlier this month in an effort to boost its market share in the United States and promote its flagship BlackBerry Bold smartphone.

Canadians need to prioritize retirement cash: BMO

As pensions come under increased pressure from corporate and public-sector cost-cutting, Canadians need to place a higher priority on saving for retirement, says a new report from the Bank of Montreal.

It says the dwindling number of defined-benefit pension plans means more retirees don't have a guaranteed level of retirement income.

As a result, more Canadians must rely on their own ability to save and invest. At the same time, Canadians are not placing high priority on a good retirement plan, instead tending to focus on salary and flexible work arrangements, the report says.

WATCHING THE SUPER BOWL, NO QUESTIONS ASKED

JUST SAYIN' ...

PAUL SULLIVAN
METRO

Like 40 or 50 million North American males, I'm an expert on the Super Bowl, the U.S. football championship so big that, like a Rocky movie, it needs to be described using Roman numerals.

As Sunday's game draws near, more and more people come to me with their questions, such as: "Paul, why don't you get a life and do something worthwhile on Sunday instead of sitting in front of the TV like a zombie for nine hours watching former Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw caper and jibber like the evil clown in IT?"

Questions like that.

So, to be even more helpful, I've compiled a list of MFAQs (most frequently asked questions) to go along with the MVPs and PATs and other acronyms that baffle civilians.

"Q: This year's Super Bowl is being played in Indianapolis. Where is Indianapolis? A: Nowhere."

Q: How old do you have to be to get invited to be the halftime act at the Super Bowl? A: Older than dirt. Like Madonna, who will perform this year's atrocity. Or Elton John, who has made it clear he would never do it, even if asked. Which he wasn't.

Q: Why are the quarterbacks always called "Tom Brady" and the cornerbacks always called "Prince Amakumara"? A: Tradition.

Q: What number is Super Bowl XVLI? A: Why, it's XVLI, of course.

Super Bowl ads are usually more interesting than the game itself. For instance, this year Honda resurrects Ferris Bueller.

Q: How come Matthew Broderick doesn't look a day older than he did 26 years ago, the first time around? A: There's a rumour going around he's part of the same lab experiment that produced Wayne Newton and Justin Bieber. Too bad it didn't work on Madonna.

Q: What is "clock management"? A: Each team has a bunch of time-outs they can invoke at any time during the game. The team that's losing, using an artful combination of time-outs, incomplete passes and fake injuries, can extend the final two minutes of the game for what seems like forever. That's why it's called the two-minute warning.

Q: How many people watch the Super Bowl. A: Thirty billion.… What?

Q: What is tailgating? A: Drinking way too much and throwing up in the parking lot before the game even starts.

Q: This year's Super Bowl is being played in Indianapolis. Where is Indianapolis? A: Nowhere.

Q: So who's going to win on Sunday? A: I am because I get to sit in front of the TV for nine hours … etc.

Q: Who will be the MVP? A: Three-to-one on Tom Brady over Prince Amakumara. Tradition is a big factor.

If Dane DeHaan isn't already a familiar face — and not just because of his resemblance to Leonardo DiCaprio — just give it some time. While fans of HBO's True Blood might already be aware of DeHaan, the 24-year-old Pennsylvania native has an impressive slate of upcoming titles hitting theatres over the next year. And he better get ready.

"I don't know that I do spend a lot of time preparing myself for stardom," DeHaan says with a laugh. "I try to just remind myself how lucky I am, and I'm just doing what I've always loved to do. I've never wanted to be famous, I've only ever wanted to be an actor, and for me that is so much fun that I just look forward to that, and everything else is a really great side-effect of that. I haven't really reached a certain point where I lose a ton of my privacy or anything. So when someone comes up to me and tells me they really like me, I just say thank you."

Of course he says that now. We'll check in with him in another 12 months.

What's on the slate for 2012?

DeHaan will appear in Prohibition-era drama the Wettest County with Tom Hardy, Gary Oldman, Guy Pearce and Shia LaBeouf, as well as the Place Beyond the Pines opposite Ryan Gosling, Bradley Cooper and Eva Mendes. And next month he heads to New York to film writer-director John Krokidas' Beat Generation drama Kill Your Darlings, starring as Lucien Carr opposite Daniel Radcliffe's Allen Ginsberg. Before all of that, though, he stars in Chronicle, an inventive, found-footage-style science fiction film about a trio of high schoolers whose encounter with a mysterious buried object leaves them with awesome telekinetic powers.

Making heros super

Special powers not needed for today's crime fighters

IN FOCUS

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

What does it really take to become a superhero? Wikipedia defines a superhero as "a type of stock character, dedicated to protecting the public."

No mention of capes or crazy gadgets? I guess there are so many types of superheroes, Wiki decided to keep the definition vague.

Take, for instance, the lads in this weekend's Chronicle. After uncovering a mysterious crater they develop telekinesis, flight and invulnerability all without the aid of butlers named Alfred, secret identities or spandex suits.

They're just ordinary guys with extraordinary powers. Civilian superheroes, if you will.

But they're not the first everyday movie characters to make the leap to become superheroes. The flickers are filled with stories of regular folks who become crusaders — some with extraordinary powers, and some without.

In Defendor, Woody Harrelson plays a man whose rich inner life spills out into his real life. By day he is dead-end-job Arthur, but by night he is Defendor, a masked superhero do-gooder. His task? To clean up the streets of Hamilton, Ont.

Speaking in comic book clichés — "Look out termites," he says, "it's squishin' time!"— and with a duct tape "D" on his chest, Defendor and his homemade arsenal of weapons patrols the streets looking for crime to prevent. He's a bit delusional, but his heart is in the right place.

HANDOUT

▶ Woody Harrelson plays Defendor.

"Who writes your dialogue?" asks a bad guy, "Spiderman?"

"No, I do it myself," he answers innocently, before teaching the guy a lesson he won't soon forget.

Defendor doesn't have superpowers, but it does have cool costumes and the right attitude. That places it alongside other characters that helped redefine what it takes to be a superhero, the better-known movie heroes Batman and Iron Man.

It's been a slow week here. Maybe everyone's playing nice and dressing demurely for awards season. Or maybe they're holed up in faraway tropical lands that don't grant visas to mortals. Either way — if a tipsy starlet falls in a bar and no one is there to hear it, we're still bored.

But then, Lindsay Lohan went outside, and it was good.

Although she was only drinking water in the lounge — give it up Lohan, the Academy isn't watching — she did seem to be enjoying something, reports RadarOnline.

"Lindsay was spotted going to the restroom with a male companion on numerous occasions in a short amount of time," a source tells the site, who adds that her eyes looked glassy.

"When the two of them emerged from the bathroom, Lindsay was giggling."

Linds, we really don't care what was going on in that bathroom. It's just good to have you back, babe.

Travel in brief

It's a combination designed to appeal to nature lovers at Bronte Creek Provincial Park in Oakville, west of Toronto. This year to mark Valentine's, park officials decided to spice things up with their first "adults-only" hike. Participants will be led through the woods Feb. 11 on a nighttime hike to learn what animals native to southern Ontario get up to in the dark.

The best Caribbean hot spots

Definitive Caribbean.com offers its picks for everything from beaches to spas to music

For the beach: Antigua and more

When you think of the Caribbean, we know what comes to mind: a gorgeous white sand beach. And rightly so. Many of the best hotels are on prime beach front, or better still, there are beaches that are still wild and remote. There tend to be two distinct coastlines to most islands: the calm Caribbean side and rougher Atlantic side. If you are looking for a lively Caribbean beach resort you'll need to aim for somewhere like Antigua, Barbados, Jamaica or the Dominican Republic. For somewhere more laid back, Anguilla's striking white beaches are hard to beat and many of the smaller islands have beach charm aplenty.

PHOTOS: METRO WORLD NEWS

For a spa: Cap Juluca, Anguilla

Fancy a massage with a sea view, or some open-air reflexology? Many of the leading hotels in the Caribbean now have serious spas — not just a few treatment and beauty rooms, but full-service operations led by leading spa companies, including Shambhala, Aveda, Molton Brown and ESPA. You'll also find holistic activities such as meditation, yoga, Tai Chi and Pilates. Try the Cap Juluca, set on its own superb beach in the west of Anguilla. It's one of the Caribbean's most famous and best-loved hotels, has a Wellness Centre, and includes Moorish-style villas. Or the Body-Holiday at LeSPORT is an upbeat resort hotel tucked into its own attractive cove at the northern tip of St Lucia.

For music: Jamaica, St. Vincent, Grenadines, Tobago

The Caribbean people are uniquely inventive when it comes to music. There is almost a different rhythm for every island. Reggae, merengue, calypso, salsa (in different versions from Cuba and Puerto Rico), compas, zouk and soca. Some islands have more than one, but almost all are lively, fast and full of explosive joy.

Check out our website for a list of the year's top gigs, island by island. Among the highlights: February is Reggae Month in Jamaica, March brings the SVG Blues & Rhythms Festival to St. Vincent and the Grenadines and April finds the Tobago International Dance Festival in, yes, Tobago.

METRO

For romance: Hermitage Bay, Antigua

The Caribbean is a wonderfully romantic place to get married (As if you couldn't tell by the photos). And it's easier than ever; regulations have loosened up in the past few years. Now in many islands you only have to be resident for two or three days before you can get married. Many hotels offer a wedding service in their grounds with ceremonies under an arbour or on the beach. Alternately, you might opt for the privacy of a tropical villa and garden. Our top pick is the Hermitage Bay Antigua, a low key and extremely elegant small hotel with a magnificent beachfront setting in a secluded west-facing bay. It has just 25 large and very private suites, ranged in leisurely fashion along a superb beach and across the hillside behind.

Drink of the week

Full of Flavour Sublimation

This recipe is one of the most efficient ways to enjoy a very refreshing sparkling water cocktail. It is also extremely fresh and natural!

Only certain sparkling waters contain big bubbles that will extract all flavours from the ingredient that is immersed.

Cucumber Version:
- piece of cucumber
- chilled sparkling water

Carefully wash piece of cucumber and cut a slice 5 mm (1/8 inch) thick and 10 cm (4 inches) long.
In a wine glass or tumbler, place cucumber then pour in chilled sparkling water. Serve with a long spoon on the side. In barely a few seconds, the cucumber's essential oils are extracted and enhanced by the strength of the bubbles, producing very refreshing drink, ideal as an aperitif.

Ginger Version:
- fresh ginger
- chilled sparkling water

Cut fine slice from a piece of fresh ginger, peel and rinse. In a wine glass or a tumbler, place the slice of ginger, and then pour in the chilled sparkling water. Serve with a long spoon on the side. The aromatic strength of the ginger blends elegantly with the freshness of the water, producing a vivifying drink for athletes or ginger lovers in general.

Chipotle kicks it up a notch

New York-based Elizabeth Karmel, a grilling and Southern foods expert, shares her recipe for Chipotle Chicken Heat of meat is balanced by a cool orange, jicama and mango slaw

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This recipe serves eight.

The secret ingredient is mayonnaise!

The first time anyone told me that, I thought I was going to faint.

Fast forward to a trip I took to Oaxaca, Mexico. At each neighbourhood gathering, women brought out platters and bowls of homemade food. My favourite was a pit-fired chicken dish that had been marinated in a thick chipotle mixture.

I asked our guide, Mexican food expert Susana Trilling, if she could find someone who would let me come to their home and show me how to make this dish. The next day we went to the home of the village's best cook.

She had everything set out on the counter for the dish — chipotles in adobo, onions, limes, chicken thighs and mayonnaise!

As we made the marinade, I realized how smart the mayo was. You can add a lot of flavour to mayonnaise and it stays suspended. Traditional marinades tend to separate. Because the flavours are spread evenly through the marinade, the food you are flavouring gets a more intense and consistent flavour. The mayonnaise also tempers any harshness.

HEART & STROKE FOUNDATION

Chipotle Chicken Preparation:

1. In blender, combine chipotles with adobo sauce, white onion, jalapeno, cilantro and lime juice. Add pinch of salt. Blend until smooth. Transfer to stainless-steel bowl. Fold in 500 ml (2 cups) mayo. Taste and adjust seasonings. If it is too spicy, add more mayo.
2. Add chicken pieces, turn to coat; cover bowl and marinate in refrigerator for 4 hours, turning.
3. Heat oven to 160 C (325 F). Set metal rack over rimmed baking sheet. Remove chicken from refrigerator and place bone-side down on the rack. Roast until breast meat near bone registers 74 C (165 F) and thigh meat registers 83 C (180 F), 45 mins.
4. Use tongs to transfer chicken to platter to rest 5 mins. before serving. Serve with wedges of lime and mango slaw.

Cool Orange, Jicama and Mango Slaw Preparation:

1. Slice off top and bottom of jicama' carefully peel. Use box grater to grate jicama. In bowl, toss grated jicama with juice of 1 of the limes.
2. Use paring knife to trim off tops and bottoms of each orange; cut off the remaining skin. One at a time, hold peeled oranges in cupped hand over bowl of jicama to catch juices. Cut each orange section between membranes to make individual sections, adding to jicama as you go. When you have cut all sections, squeeze leftover membranes to extract as much of the juice as possible. Toss well; mix in mangoes.
3. Arrange on platter. Garnish with whole cilantro leaves and a light dusting of cayenne pepper, if desired. Cut remaining lime into wedges for serving with the slaw.

Parlez-vous français for real?

Are you bilingual? What makes you sure that you are or you aren't? Make it clear during the job search

MARISA BARATTA
TALENTEGG.CA

ISTOCK

▶ Speak up about your language skills!

How much of another language do you have to speak or write to be considered bilingual?

• Maya Meyouhas, general manager of Sweetspot Quebec, says that "in Quebec, where most people speak at least two languages, I would consider someone bilingual if they can just as easily communicate (speak and write) in one language as they can in the other."

• Grégoire Holtz, French professor at the University of Toronto, believes bilingualism means being as comfortable in one language as in the other, though you may sometimes hesitate or struggle to translate a thought. Bilingualism also demands a level of understanding where the other language's humour or subtleties are concerned.

• Françoise Mougeon, associate principal of academics and research at Glendon College at York University, feels that one needs to reach "maximum efficiency" and "a thorough command of the language" in order to succeed in all forms of communication.

Glendon students are tested on this very notion; students who apply for a certificate in bilingual excellence must complete a bilingual written test focusing on their weaker language before advancing to an oral interview in which students must speak in both languages.

Is there a way to prove you're bilingual to an employer?

"The best way to prove it is during the interview," Maya says. "If bilingualism is important, the employer will communicate with you (test you) in both languages — they'll know quickly enough if your language skills are right for the position."

When Christopher applied to be a TA at the University of Ottawa, he was asked to share a copy of his high school diploma (he studied extended French) and university transcripts, which highlighted his minor in French. When working as a teller at the National Bank of Canada in Ottawa, his language skills were put to the test, but he was asked only one question in French. The bilingual demand varies with the job.

Maya adds another place where you can really shine: "If the job posting is in French (or if the company is based in Quebec), send your CV and/or cover letter in French."

What about my resumé?

If looking to indicate your bilingualism on your resumé, Maya advises against use of the word "bilingual," as it's too vague. It's best to be honest about your level of comfort and knowledge in both languages. After all, your employer isn't the only one who will suffer should you be asked to lead a presentation or write a report in a language you don't know well enough.

"Specify instead your functional/good/strong/excellent written and/or verbal communication skills in French and English," she suggests. This shows your employer how well you know both languages and, what's more, it showcases honesty: and what employer doesn't love that virtue?

Optimistic in Pittsburgh

Doctors say tests show Crosby suffered soft-tissue damage, not fractured neck vertebrae

GENE J. PUSKAR/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

▶ Sidney Crosby and Penguins general manager Ray Shero speak to reporters in Pittsburgh on Tuesday.

Sidney Crosby says he has no issue with the Pittsburgh Penguins over his medical treatment and news of a soft-tissue neck injury gives him cause for encouragement.

"I think the biggest thing to take from it is that it's something I can work on. I can come in and get my neck worked on," the Penguins star told a news conference on Tuesday at the Consol Energy Center in Pittsburgh.

Crosby is back skating and says he has felt improvement.

"It's encouraging to be skating," he said. "I'm just happy at this point with doing that."

On Saturday, the Penguins confirmed that a specialist had diagnosed their captain with a neck injury in addition to his concussion-related problems. This came amidst reports that Crosby had a fracture to his C1 and C2 vertebrae — with Crosby's agent Pat Brisson saying it was too soon to draw a conclusion on that.

Still, it led to speculation that the Crosby camp was unhappy with the star's medical care in his return from concussion-related problems, something the Penguins sought to dispel Monday.

Crosby added his voice to that Tuesday.

"I think the team's been very encouraging," he said. "There's not a lot of answers with this stuff."

General manager Ray Shero told the news conference that Crosby had been receiving treatment for his neck and that the club had encouraged him to seek expert opinions.

The Pens, said Brisson, along with team owner Mario Lemieux and CEO David Morehouse went Monday to Philadelphia to have Dr. Alexander Vaccaro review the CT scan and MRI taken by Dr. Robert S. Bray last week in Los Angeles.

"There's a pretty big possibility that could be causing some of the issues, so I really hope that's the case, and hope with some treatment that it'll improve and that's hopefully the end of it."
SIDNEY CROSBY ON HIS SOFT-TISSUE NECK INJURY

Bray had diagnosed a neck injury but wanted someone else to review the results, the club said.

Vaccaro is a spinal trauma expert at Thomas Jefferson University Hospital and past president of the American Spinal Injury Association. His opinion was that Crosby was suffering from a soft-tissue injury of the neck that could be causing neurological symptoms.

"Bray has treated Crosby with an injection to alleviate swelling in the C1-2 joint of the neck and will be overseeing his progression with therapists," the team said in a statement. "Doctors say the symptoms of a soft-tissue neck injury are similar to concussion symptoms.

"Vaccaro, Bray and UPMC doctors all agree that Crosby is safe, the injury is treatable, and he will return to action when he is symptom-free."

Crosby said he hoped the injection was a "one-time thing."

Penguins shock Leafs with late rally

Evgeni Malkin tied it with six seconds left in regulation and then scored the lone shootout goal to lift the Penguins to a 5-4 victory over the Maple Leafs in Pittsburgh on Tuesday night.

Malkin's 27th goal capped a third-period surge by the Penguins, who trailed 4-1 with 13 minutes left. Malkin then scored on Jonas Gustavsson in the second round of the shootout to extend Pittsburgh's winning streak to eight games.

Fiat 500c (Cabrio)

The 500c (Cabrio) is, depending on your viewpoint, either a convertible or a regular 500 with a giant power-operated roof. In 15 seconds, the two-ply cloth top folds accordion-style, leaving the roof pillars and side glass in place.

Sure it's quirky, but that's how it was originally done on the 1950s 500. As well as leaving your coiffure in tact, Fiat claims that the fixed side pillar design is far more rigid than open-air convertible designs.

The Cabrio features a buzzy 101-horsepower 1.4-litre four-cylinder engine that delivers at least adequate acceleration whether connected to a five-speed manual transmission, or optional six-speed automatic.

Fiat 500 Abarth

More performance assistance is on the way with the mid-2012 launch of the Fiat 500 Abarth. The model is named for Karl Abarth, who successfully tuned the original 500 for racing use (Abarth was to Fiat what John Cooper was to Mini).

The Abarth arrives with a turbocharged version of the 1.4 that makes 160 horsepower and 170 pound-feet of torque.

Also part of the package is a five-speed manual gearbox, sport-tuned suspension and exhaust, beefier brakes, special Abarth alloy wheels (in 16-, or optional 17-inch sizes), distinctive nosepiece and rear spoiler plus specific interior/exterior trim.

▶ Behold the Fiat 500 Abarth, in both white and black. The 500 is a small car with a small price tag, but it also makes an interesting style statement.

Can a small car really be mighty?

MALCOLM GUNN
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA
WHEELBASE MEDIA

How could it miss, really?

A cute, fun and economical car with Italian heritage at a base sticker price of just $17,000?

Well, it hasn't missed, exactly, but it has been a bumpy ride for Chrysler's Italy-based offshoot as it attempts to carve out a decent-sized slice of a rather small niche-market pie.

Now there's a new marketing boss and two new models to help reach an aggressive North American target of 50,000 cars a year.

But is it enough? And do North American buyers get it?

Fifty-plus years ago, the Volkswagen Beetle charmed North Americans with quirky styling and a highly effective ad campaign that, like the rear-engine, air-cooled car itself, broke all the rules. Since then, lightning has yet to strike twice, although the resurrected Mini Cooper in all its iconic glory has been more than moderately successful.

On these shores, the 500's heritage is far less appreciated, but at least the car delivers on the cute-and-cool factor. Of course, a spike in gas prices would really help to light a fire under the 500's sales chart.

For the 2012 model year, two new versions of the Fiat 500 await your consideration — the 500c (convertible) and the performance-minded Abarth.

With both versions appealing to a wider audience, it will be easier for Fiat to sell you on the idea of the 500, but keep in mind the small-car pie is still small in North America.

▶ The colour-coordinated dash panel makes the interior feel wider than it really is.

2012 Fiat 500

What you should know about the 2012 Fiat 500:

- Types: Two-door, front-wheel-drive sub-compact hatchback/convertible.
- Engines (hp): 1.4-litre DOHC I4 (101); 1.4-litre DOHC I4, turbocharged (160).
- Transmission: Five-speed manual; six-speed automatic (opt., except Abarth).
- Market position: Sub-compacts currently occupy an equally tiny percentage of the automotive landscape. The Fiat 500, along with new entries from General Motors and Toyota, indicates this category is definitely on the rise.
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy) 6.7/5.1 (MT).

Remember that one time at my place where we had so much fun..... lets take it to the next level tonight if you know what i mean (wink wink) when we play star wars on playstation 3
FROM ROGER

Natasha
You're like a light that I can't seem to stop staring at...when you're near, everything is brighter...everything is hopeful. But your light fades when you're gone...and my hope fades...and I am nothing without you. FROM THE ONE WHO WILL NEVER HAVE YOU

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20
Has someone taken advantage of you? Maybe, but more likely you are overreacting.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21
This could be a hectic week and most likely you'll find yourself rushing all over the place without getting much done.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21
Watch out you don't bite off a larger chunk than you can comfortably chew today.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 This could be and should be a lucky week for you, so don't be afraid to take the occasional risk. Chew today.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23
This could be and should be a lucky week for you, so don't be afraid to take the occasional risk.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22
A loved one seems to be in an emotional mood at the moment and it's unlikely their outlook will improve until later in the week.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
You really don't have to explain your actions or your motives to anybody.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22
The more someone tries to tell you that something cannot be done the more determined you will be to prove them wrong.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 No matter how negative a picture certain people may be painting of your current situation all you need to know is that they are wrong.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20
Anyone who expects you to stay in one place over the next few days is going to be disappointed.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18
You seem to be a bit tense at the moment. Why is that?

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
It seems you are having to react to one crisis after another of late. Is there an end in sight? Yes.
